

Walter Hensley Elected

By a majority of nearly one thousand, the voters of the Thirteenth District have said, "Well done, good and faithful servant!" to Walter L. Hensley. The REGISTER extends congratulations.

IRON COUNTY DEMOCRATIC!

A CLEAN SWEEP!

He crows! He crows with all his might! Not in malice, not with spite, But blithely sounds his notes of cheer, This Democratic chanticleer.

The fight was long, and stubborn, too, From west to south the county thro', But now the foe, from A to Izzard, Lie 'neath the Democratic blizzard!

This rooster crows for C. P. Damron, who will represent Iron County in the coming session of the Legislature, with ability and faithfulness.

This is a proud bird, and he is sending forth his clarion notes of joy over the election of Harry B. Jones as Presiding Judge of the County Court, who will make a vigilant and intelligent official.

This member of the flock is sounding his joyous voice in satisfaction that Harry Holland will, as Judge of the Southern District, look after the county's interests for the next two years, with care and discretion.

And this rejoices in the reelection of W. A. Townsend for the Western District by a majority as great as unexpected, but by no means beyond his deserving.

Here is another who joins the jubilant chorus. He stands for Probate Judge O. W. Roop, proclaiming his election to another four-year term of good and efficient service.

And this bantam sings loud and clear, as well he may, for he stands for Jesse M. Hawkins, Circuit Clerk and Recorder, upon whom has been placed still another time the seal of public approval in unmistakable character.

This is a game bird, too, but he comes out of the conflict with scarcely a ruffled feather. He is pardonably proud of Arthur Huff's nearly five hundred majority for County Clerk. That office will be well filled for the next four years.

The toughest match in the ring was fought by the proud victor who is here proclaiming the election of B. P. Burnham for County Collector. Who can blame him for rejoicing with might and main over his hard-earned victory.

Here stands tip-toed the youngest of the flock, but his voice is full and shrill, for he made a gallant fight to pronounced victory. Wm. B. Edgar, Jr., as Prosecuting Attorney, will serve the county ably and faithfully. The people who gave him nearly four hundred majority may congratulate themselves.

Now, let us forget the acerbities of the campaign and proceed to make each other prosperous and happy.

GRAND Old Missouri!

The President will still have a Democratic Congress to stand by him.

It will be a cold day, with snow and ice, in July, when our Wm. J. gets left.

VIRTUALLY without opposition, Hon. Carter M. Buford, of Reynolds, is returned to the State Senate. This distinction and honor is due him.

The defeated candidates may, like the unsuccessful aspirant of Louisiana in the golden days, console themselves with his reflection after the returns were all in: "We are a great people air—we are a great people! No doubt of it, sir! But, sir, we are not an intelligent people!"

One of the gratifying results of the election was the defeat of Hooper, the Republican governor of Tennessee who was a candidate for re-election.

It is proper, though the campaign is done, and the late contending forces have resumed the even tenor of their ways, to make acknowledgment to Hon. B. H. Marbury for the address he gave us at the courthouse on Wednesday evening of last week. It was an appeal, purely, to the sense of right having place in all of all shades of opinion and conviction. In its flow of word-melody there was not a harsh or offending note; nevertheless it was clear, forcible and effective in its logic. The plaudits it called forth were not the perfunctory expression sometimes given to cheer the speaker: they were hearty and sincere. He won the praise and good-will of all.

To Help Railroads.

The Railroad Commission of the State of Georgia, realizing the serious financial predicament in which the Railroads are at present, has decided to come to the rescue of the transportation interests to tide them over their dilemma. The Chairman of the Commission in a letter to the General Counsel of the Southern Railway states that owing to the material decrease in the revenues of carriers the Georgia Railroad Commission will not now nor until the present financial situation is relieved impose upon any of the roads subject to its jurisdiction any expenditures for new stations, warehouses, terminal facilities, etc., except such as are absolutely necessary. If the Railroad Commissions of other States follow the example of the Georgia Commission it will aid greatly in saving the roads from the financial ruin which is now staring them in the face. Matters look particularly blue for the various Southwestern lines which have been greatly hampered by expensive and unreasonable legislation and rulings of various kinds.

On the Giving and Taking of Advice.

Of giving advice there is no end. It is one of the things which is very easy and pleasant to give—and very hard to take. America is an advice-ridden nation. We are preached to from every nook and cranny, from pulpit and platform, from the most obscure nook in a remote agricultural paper to our heaviest magazine. And most of it is good advice, only it isn't good to take. It sounds good, it is reasonable, it is based on moral principles, but it fails in that it doesn't fit. We remember, when but a small boy, hearing a song on bearing each other's burdens, one verse of which ran: "Meekly bear thine own full measure and thy brother's share." In the speculative way of a child we got to wondering if everybody took that who would have any load to carry. That is the defect in most advice. It is too sweeping, too general, or too radical. It wants everybody to do the same thing, or it wants the individual to quit everything and do the one thing. Now, meat may be an excellent thing for John Henry, and he may feel justified in advising the eating of meat. But it often falls out that Tom Jones, who gets the advice, is not the fellow to eat meat.

Most of us give advice with the view of radically changing the other person's purposes. That is seldom wise. No matter how excellent my plans are, they are seldom good in exactly the same way for Bud Simmons and Bill Smith. My way of doing things would very likely prove awkward or impossible to them. It is good to give advice—unless the advice is born purely of egotism, for it shows a friendly interest in our fellow men, but it is not good to give it dogmatically and get bumptious if it is not followed as we give it. For, after all, the very best advice is not that which persuades others to give up their way and accept ours, but that which serves as a mere encourager to stimulate them to carry out their own best intentions.

Hog Cholera Must Go.

The College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri hopes to almost entirely remove hog cholera from the state. To fight the disease it is helping the farmers to organize anti-hog cholera clubs for the prevention and cure of the disease. The college works by counties. Beginning October 26 and continuing for a week the College of Agriculture will conduct a series of meetings throughout Cass County to form such clubs. In addition to the help in organization the college will keep a specialist in the county as long as any tracts of the disease exists.

This system of fighting hog cholera was started by the College of Agriculture last fall with the successful organization of Johnson County. The Faculty hopes the farmers of all counties in Missouri will co-operate with them for it is only with the help of the farmers that the disease can be driven out.

The College of Agriculture is building what will probably be the finest plant for the manufacture of hog cholera serum in the United States. This plant became necessary because of the increased demand for serum from the farmers of the state amounting to 30 per cent over last year. The plant will be finished December 1. The extent of the work done by the College of Agriculture in eradicating the disease is shown by the facts that 208,619 doses of serum representing almost as many hogs treated were sent out by the college during the year. Between 85 and 90 per cent of those treated were saved, which alone is a saving to the state of Missouri of almost one and a half million dollars.

Mine La Motte Cuts Wages.

(Fredericktown Democrat-News.) It is authoritatively reported that the management of the Mine La Motte Company has given notice to the employees that on November 15th a wage reduction of 30 per cent will go into effect throughout all the departments of the company's works. As the company cannot find a market for their lead, caused by the European War, they find it necessary to reduce expenses during the lull in business.

Thirty days notice has been given to the employees to accept or reject the wage-reduction, in which latter event the mines will temporarily close down.

St. Francois county is also feeling the effect of the present depression in business. We clip the following from the Lead Belt News concerning the situation in that county.

Owing to the business depression which is now very much in evidence all over the United States the lead markets has fallen off to such an extent that the Doe Run and St. Joseph Lead Companies have found it necessary to curtail the production of their mines 25 per cent. The Rivermines power plant, No. 9, Doe Run and No. 11, Hunts and Bonne Terre mills will be closed down. The other mines of these companies will be operated five days per week instead of six. The following statement has been handed out by Clinton H. Crane, president of the St. Joseph and Doe Run Lead companies:

"The directors of the St. Joseph Lead Company and the Doe Run Lead Company, fully realizing the hardship such a course will impose on the district, feel constrained for the present to reduce the company's output 25 per cent. Instead of closing one quarter of the plant which for the Company would be the easiest and cheapest method of production, but which would unevenly distribute the burden on the communities, it has been decided to run five days a week, instead of six, at all mines except No. 9 Doe Run and No. 11 Hunts, which will be closed entirely. The Bonne Terre Mill will be closed temporarily, the St. Joseph Lead Company having leased, from the Doe Run Lead Company two sections of its No. 3 Mill to handle the Bonne Terre ore, will operate these sections by men taken from the Bonne Terre mill. The Rivermines Power Plant will be closed. "So far as possible, married men will be given a preference in employment."

"Instead of Enamel."

Kitchen shelves painted white are much easier to keep clean than if merely covered with paper. Instead of covering the paint with a coat of enamel as a finish, a coating of thin, hot starch does as well, is inexpensive, and will not wash off, at least so says someone who has tried it.

Formation of Halitones.

According to a German scientist, halitones are formed by the electricity of thunderstorms which they accompany.
